ABSTRACT

A method and system for assigning resources in wireless communication systems is disclosed. Timeslots allocated for handling user traffic are evaluated to create a plurality of timeslot sequences. Resources are assigned to the allocated timeslots according to the timeslot sequence having the lowest total interference.